Pizza Factory Selects PAR Technology’s Unified Platform to Power Restaurant Operations and Digital Growth

Through PAR's unified platform, Pizza Factory will gain access to insights and connected operations across all locations

NEW HARTFORD, N.Y. (June 16, 2026) – PAR Technology Corporation (NYSE: PAR), a leading technology provider powering multi-unit operators across restaurant, retail, and large-scale commerce, today announced that award-winning franchise brand Pizza Factory has selected PAR’s unified suite of solutions to modernize its restaurant technology stack and support continued operational and digital growth across its 110 locations.

Pizza Factory will leverage PAR’s unified platform, including PAR POS™, PAR OPS® with Recovery, Intelligence, Labor, and Inventory modules, PAR Ordering™, PAR Hardware™, and a renewal of PAR® Punchh®. Together, these solutions create a connected system that unifies front- and back-of-house operations while enabling data-driven, automated decision-making across the business.

“When front- and back-of-house systems work together, restaurants gain the clarity and control they need to operate at their best – both in terms of driving same-store sales and protecting margins,” said Savneet Singh, CEO of PAR Technology. “PAR’s unified platform helps brands like Pizza Factory simplify operations, act on real-time insight, and build a stronger foundation for growth. Pizza is a core strategic focus area for PAR, and we are looking forward to partnering with Pizza Factory on further innovation in this category.”

The fast casual pizza brand has been franchising for over 40 years and enters a new era of modernization with the introduction of PAR’s technology. With 108 franchised locations and two corporate stores within its system, Pizza Factory continues its reputation as a community staple through a commitment to evolving with the restaurant industry.

“Delivering a great pizza experience depends on strong execution at every location,” said Lisa Roscoe, CEO of Pizza Factory. “PAR gives us a unified platform across POS, loyalty, operations, and payments, along with the insight our teams need to make smarter decisions every day. This sets us up to run more efficiently while continuing to invest in the guest experience.”

By consolidating its technology under a single provider, Pizza Factory gains real-time visibility across ordering, kitchen execution, labor planning, inventory management, payments, digital channels, and guest engagement. Intelligence built directly into the platform continuously analyzes operational data, helping teams identify opportunities, respond faster, and operate more consistently at scale.

Built on a modern, cloud-based architecture, PAR's platform is designed to scale with growing brands and adapt as technology and guest expectations evolve.

PAR's platform is designed to eliminate technology silos by connecting data across POS, operations, loyalty, digital ordering, and payments. Embedded intelligence helps surface meaningful insights and automate routine workflows, reducing manual effort for restaurant teams and improving consistency across locations.

For Pizza Factory, this includes:

- Improved labor and inventory planning informed by real-time operational data
- Greater order accuracy and recovery supported by connected systems across channels
- More personalized guest engagement enabled by loyalty insights tied to transaction and operational data
- Reduced operational complexity with fewer systems to manage and a shared source of truth

As Pizza Factory continues to evolve, PAR's integrated platform provides the flexibility to scale without adding complexity. Shared data, consistent workflows, and unified support help restaurant teams stay focused on what matters most: delivering great food and great service.
